Enrollment Procedures Change To Shorten Line

By JAMES NIX

New enrollment procedures for the summer and fall terms will require students to have a personalized enrollment form and will limit the time when they may enroll.

All currently enrolled students planning to return to Southwestern will have on file a personalized enrollment form. These forms will allow the enrollment office to more efficiently process your enrollment. After picking up the forms on the second floor of the Administration Building, students should confer with their advisors in selecting the classes they need to take.

On obtaining your advisor's approval, you should then take your personalized enrollment form to the Enrollment Center, which is located in Room A-110 of the Administration Building. Students are required to have their social security number available when going through the final stages of enrollment. Upon completion of enrollment, students will receive their schedule of classes and bill for fees.

There has also been changes in the time when a student may enroll. In order to shorten long lines to the enrollment room, students will be divided, by classification, into what time they will be allowed to enroll.

Seniors and graduate students will be allowed to enroll any time during the full enrollment period. Underclassmen can only enroll during the periods indicated on the enrollment schedule. Enrollment will extend from March 28 to April 29.

Students, who are unable to enroll during their allotted enrollment periods, may enroll during the summer term and August for the fall term. However, are advised to plan on spending several hours in the enrollment process.

The Enrollment Center hopes that the new procedures will prevent students from having to wait a long time during the enrollment process.

Two Amendments Pass In Student Body Vote

By TAMI ALEXANDER

Two amendments to the constitution of the Student Senate were voted on and approved by the student body on Feb. 10, 1983.

The first amendment won by a marginal 156 to 5 votes. This amendment will add the vice-president of each class and make them a full-time senate member.

Ed Parsley, president of the Student Senate, says they added the amendment so that if the president has to be replaced, he'll be replaced by somebody who has been in the senate and knows what's going on. "This way we won't have lag time to replace the president. It will also increase the number of working senate members and add representatives from each class."

The second amendment won by 145 to 14 votes. This amendment will change elections to the spring semester; not just the fall.

Parsley states that during the summer the president and vice-president operate the Student Senate. "When school starts in the fall, we have to wait to elect officers. This delays us, and we can't get going. With the second amendment added, the senate can get started before representatives are elected."

The first amendment approved was in Article II Legislative Branch, Section 3 Membership. As amended the new section is: All senators shall be members of the Student Association. The Student Senate shall be composed of representatives from each university class. Each class shall be entitled to one representative for each one hundred fifty (150) students. A remainder of at least seventy six (76) students constitutes a basis for one additional representative for the class involved. The president and vice-president of each of the university classes shall also be members of the Student Senate.

The second amendment approved was in Article III Executive Branch Section 3 Elections. As amended, the section shall read: A. Elections for the positions of president, vice-president, and treasurer of the Student Association and for the president and vice-president of each of the respective senior, junior, and sophomore classes shall occur in April. The Student Senate shall appoint an election board to govern the elections and determine the winners. The president and vice-president of the Student Association shall run together on a ticket, and votes shall be cast for the Student Association candidates as a team. B. General Senate elections and class officer elections for the freshman class shall be conducted by the Executive Council and shall be held on the third Thursday of the fall semester during Freshman Week. Executive Council shall govern the elections and determine the winners.

Bridal Show Presents "Breath of Spring"

By BRENDA BILLINGS

The annual Bridal Showcase scheduled March 1 in the Southwestern ballroom will be a "breath of spring," according to Dean Freda Johnson.

The showcase will be presented three times on March 1: 10:30, 2:30 and 7:30. Local residents and students are encouraged to attend either the afternoon or evening show. Heavy attendance by high schools at the first show makes seating scarce. "Last year, students from 46 high schools attended the show," Dean Johnson says.

One third of the show will be devoted to formal wedding attire. Trousseau, active sportswear and prom and party dresses will be presented in the remainder of the show.

Local merchants will display items such as china, stoneware, fabrics, jewelry and wedding stationary. Representatives will also be on hand to explain various services offered by the merchants.

Drawings will take place at each of the three shows for door prizes. Participating merchants intend to donate three prizes each.

A $150 scholarship to be used at Southwestern will be drawn at the end of the day. One must be a high school senior or college freshman, sophomore or junior with a 2.5 or better grade point in order to be eligible for the scholarship.

Commentators at the showcase will be Martha Sauer from the Kloset, Frankie Jameson from Frankie's and Paul Beach from the Weatherford Floral and Bridal Shoppe.

Dean Johnson and a committee including Gary Thompson, Emporium; Jerry Fast, Pink Turtle; Frankie Jameson, Martha Sauer and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Beach. This committee is responsible for planning and organizing the showcase.

All showings are free and Dean Johnson encourages everyone to attend by saying: "It will be a beautiful, refreshing and nice way to spend an evening."

Seminar To Be April 5

The Southwestern School of Business Alumni Association, in cooperation with the SWOSU School of Business, will teach a seminar entitled "Interviewing and Resume Writing Technique." The seminar will be held Tuesday, April 5, from 7-9:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium.

This seminar will deal with the techniques needed to prepare a resume that will be read by prospective employers, and it will give participants an insight into making a good impression during that all-important interview.

More information can be obtained by either contacting Dean Hibler in the Dean's Office of the School of Business at 772-6611, Ext. 4208, or by writing to P.O. Box 1564, Clinton, Okla. 73601, or calling Larry Claxton at 271-4542 or 794-7970 and/or calling Johnny Beech at 323-1414 or 323-6813.

Note Taking Is Important In Learning

By ERNIE HOBERECHT

Learning how to take notes is an important part of learning. If a student does not take notes correctly, they might not be able to recognize the notes they have taken when it is time to study for a test.

Taking notes from a book is easier than taking notes from a lecture. As the student is reading his assignment they should be taking notes at the same time. This helps the student remember what they have read, and the material read would be understood a lot better. There are two ways of taking book notes: One is to highlight the material in the book, and the second is to write it down in a notebook.

Taking notes in class because the student must pay attention to the instructor. The student should always write down material written on the blackboard and always pay attention when the instructor is listing. These will most likely be on the test. Always study handout material.

A good study habit is always important. It is said that a student should study two-three hours for every hour that student has taken during the semester. This is not always the point. Some students don't study until a couple of nights before an exam. Studying at least an hour each night is sufficient for the average student.

Relaxation is a good idea before a major test. Don't cram for a test, take time off. Taking time from studying will sometimes ease the tensions of the test. The student should take this time to think over in their head of what they have already studied. When all this information is spinning around in your head this time will help sort things out.

Sleep is also important. If a student does not get enough sleep then their brain will not function properly. When the student crams all night before the test the brain is worn out, and it will be more difficult to take the test.

When time comes to take the test, the student should be calm. When you are handed the test, don't just rush in, examine the test so you will know how the test is set up. Sometimes there are clues hidden in the test for some of the answers. Remain taking the test until you are sure you have filled in all the questions you can, sometimes you will remember answers you could have answered and if you have already turned in the test, it's too late to fill in the blanks. Tests are mostly psychological, if you think that you will flunk, most likely you will, always have a positive attitude.

SWOSU Receives Plaque For Blood Donations From OBI

By TAMI ALEXANDER

Southwestern Oklahoma State University was awarded a plaque for giving more blood than any other college in Oklahoma.

Ed Parsley, president of the Student Senate, traveled with Scott Davis, senate member, to Oklahoma City on Jan. 20, 1983, to receive the award. It was given by the Oklahoma Blood Institution for giving the most pints of blood in 1982.

While in the city, they toured research facilities. "They've got a lot of new research facilities. We had the opportunity to see where they freeze blood and keep it indefinitely. It was really neat", remarked Ed.

Six hundred and fifty six pints of blood were donated by SWOSU students during the Spring and Fall Blood Drive. Parsley states, "this is rather unusual considering SWOSU was up against larger universities."

The next Blood Drive will be held March 2 and 3 in the upper lounge of the Student Union. The hours will be from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Parsley added that there will be a contest between campus organizations to see who can donate the most blood. "The winning organization will receive $100, while 2nd and 3rd places will pick up $50 each."

Southwestern Offers Financial Aids

By JAMES NIX

Do you need help in paying your school expenses? Southwestern offers a variety of financial aids to help you.

You may be eligible for loans, grants, or scholarships. These aids are provided by state, federal, private, and commercial agencies.

At last count there were over 50 scholarships with many offering several awards. Although a large portion of the scholarships are for pharmacy majors, students in other majors should not be discouraged. There are scholarships for several majors including business, English, journalism, chemistry, nursing, and theatre.

Grants are abundant to those who meet the eligibility requirements. They include the Pell, OTAG, and the SEOG.

Loans are offered to most students with a reasonable interest rate. The National Direct Student Loan and the Guaranteed Student Loan are the most popular, but the university provides many more ranging from emergency loans to the Health Professions Student Loan.

If you prefer to work your way through college, you may try the College Work-Study Program. To eligible students a part-time job on the campus is offered. You may find employment in jobs such as lab assistants, secretaries, or maintenance and cafeteria workers.

However, if you do not meet the eligibility requirements for Work-Study, Southwestern still offers several part-time working positions on campus.

If you would like further information on any of the programs, go to the Office of Student Aids in the Administration Building.

Heart attack and stroke will kill about 850,000 Americans this year. Thousands of these deaths could be prevented by knowing and recognizing the early warning signals. Ask your local Heart Association.

The shortest distance between two schools is Long Distance.

With friends at other schools you can compare what's in... and what's out.

Discuss the itinerary for your next trip, and encourage your friend not to be quite so well prepared. ("I just don't think you'll need your skis in New York City...")

Solicit and/or provide solace and encouragement in the depths of a mid-term all-nighter.

The fact is, being away at different schools just gives you that much more to talk about.

Luckily, when you call anyone in Oklahoma after 11pm weeknights, or anytime between 11pm Friday and 5pm Sunday, you can talk 10 minutes for $2.49*. Or less, depending on where you call.

Going away to school is even more fun when you share it with a friend. Especially a friend who's away at school!

Reach out and touch someone.

STUDENTS OBSERVE Steve Rosser's exhibit in the Southwestern art gallery.

Rosser's Exhibit On Display

By SHARON BOURBEAU

Steve Rosser, a former student at Southwestern, currently has an exhibit in the Southwestern art gallery located on the main floor of the Art Building.

Rosser, who is now living in Lookeba, is currently working on his master's degree at the University of Tulsa.

As a part of his program, Rosser is to create an installation. The art of creating an environment within an environment was "probably first done in 1913. They became increasingly popular in the late 60's," claims James Terrell, Art Department Chairman.

"Rosser's installation is planned to the inch. It's not just something that is thrown together. It took anywhere from six to eight months to get everything in order," Terrell adds.

All of Rosser's artifacts relate to his exhibition. Rosser grew up in western Oklahoma and uses a western-type theme in his installation.

"Themes may include the duality of man versus the natural. Another may be the city versus the rural," Terrell says.

"Each painting includes things Rosser actually experienced or came into contact with," Terrell added.

"Students don't get a chance to see this type of art around here. The last one on campus was one Rosser did about four years ago," Terrell concluded.

The display will be up until Feb. 25. Students are encouraged to drop by any time the Art Building is open to see Rosser's work.

He graduated from Nashotah Theological Seminary in 1975 and has served churches in Kansas City, Kan., and Lincoln, Ill. Major Eats Up Time

By CATHY HORN

Majoring in music can be a hassle but a lot of fun, too. Constantly going to classes, practicing, rehearsing, attending recitals, and playing for football games takes up most of the time a person has. Why do they put up with such a busy schedule? Is it worth it? Are there benefits other than material?

A typical semester schedule for a music major is 17-20 credit hours. This usually means classes everyday and in many cases all day. In other departments the hours could equal approximately 25-35 credits.

Because music is such a specialized field more classes are necessary. Classes in music theory, instrumentation, conducting, history and ensembles are just the basics to advanced musical training.

One thing was agreed on by people in this department; it's one big family. Kay Thomas, Fairview junior, states, "We have to all get along. You can't make good music and practice together if you hate each other."

Teresa Burnside, Buffalo junior, remarked, "People in other departments don't have the opportunity to be as close to each other like we do. We are constantly together in rehearsals, recitals, and trips."

Students Elect New President

Aloysius C. Ibe is the new president of the International Student's Union of Southwestern. Other officers elected recently for this group include: Vipul Vassa, first vice-president; Petua, second vice-president; Olufemi Ajala, general secretary, and Milan Mehta, treasurer. Sponsors, Mrs. J. Ellinger and Dr. Seibert, directed the meeting in the Baptist Student Union.

The next meeting of the union has been scheduled for March 4 in S304 at 7 p.m. All international students are invited.

When asked if all the hassle worth the effort, Steve Duncan Lawton senior stated, "Yes, you can touch people with music in ways that nothing else can. People who won't even talk to you often will stop and listen to your music."

Sometimes depression sets in. "When I get down about being busy, I have to stop and think what I decided on what I'm doing. I decided on music because it's one thing that really makes me happy," remarked Kay.

Teresa said that on days she feels depressed, just walking in the Music Building and seeing friends who care lifts her spirit. "There's a common bond," Kay adds. "We pull for each other. It's not competition, but rather, wow, she's come a long way. I remember when..."

Teresa told a story of a girl walking by the Music Building claiming the people inside were strange because she once saw someone "fly" down the hallway. Kay explained that people are very uninhibited there, but when a shy person enters, they usually come out of their shells before long. "You can't help but love the kids that are around you, whether they are a bit off the wall or not," Kay added.

Professors and instructors are close to the students. Students have a chance to relate better to their instructors on a more personal level. "The instructors are some of the neatest people on campus. They really care about everything we do. We're not just a face to them," explained Teresa.

Music majors, whether instrumental, vocal, education, performance, sacred or therapeutic, all have bonds of friendship. That's what keeps many of the people in the department. "We really don't have it as rough as we think because of the rewards. Why else would I go to band everyday for almost an entire semester for only one credit if I didn't like the people," added Teresa.

Apartment Rent Lowers As Oil Boom Decreases

By TAMI ALEXANDER

If you're in the market for an apartment, you'll be happy to know that many of them are coming down on their rent. A while back it was almost impossible to find an apartment. If you were lucky enough to find one, it was probably quite expensive. This is mainly due to the oil boom. The oil field workers were drawn from different states and needed places to stay. It was extremely easy for them to pay the apartment prices. Now that the oil boom has slacked off a bit, apartment hunters are in luck.

Agho Armoudian, owner of seven apartment complexes, says her apartments have been reduced this year. "The new apartment buildings have decreased 20 to 25 per cent. The older apartments have decreased 10 to 15 per cent." Aside from the fact that the oil boom has weakened, Mrs. Armoudian says apartments have gotten cheaper because the interest rates have fallen. This is mainly in effect for the new apartment buildings. Since the interest rates have fallen, people can afford short-term loans. Therefore, rent will automatically be reduced. Mrs. Armoudian added that she does not expect the rent to increase any this year. "We also have special rates for students," she concluded.

Carla Brown, Alex sophomore, says her rent was lowered before she moved in last year. Carla stated that she doesn't anticipate any rent increase for a while. "There are a lot of vacant apartments around where I live. Apartments are easier to come by and with rent cheaper, people will be filling them soon."

Tom Wade, Oklahoma City junior, says his rent has been lowered by about 10 per cent. "With most of the oil field workers moving off, students get a small cut on the rent. We even get a choice of apartments, instead of taking what we can get. It's great being able to save on the rent."

Not all of the apartment buildings have been reduced. Georgia Garner, Cordell sophomore, has proof of this. "Our rent was raised $10 a month, and I imagine it will keep going up." Georgia added that it's rough living in an apartment. "Sometimes the mail gets messed up, and we don't get our bills. Then we end up paying a fee because we didn't pay our bill." Georgia claims it's a lot of responsibility living in an apartment. "You can't hardly afford to move because of all the deposits.

Then you have the problem of getting your water and gas moved. It would help if our rent would get lowered."

Christian Lyrics Penetrate Today's Rock Music

By CATHY HORN

Many people are familiar with rock music and other popular music. Now more people are becoming influenced with contemporary Christian music. This inspirational music is supplementing as well as replacing music that students on campus listen to.

Contemporary Christian music has many facets. Previous religious music was somewhat behind popular music. Now, all the heavy metal, percussion, and harmonies are included.

Scottish new-waver, Sheila Walsh, performs a style that of a reformed punk-rocker and is one of the powerful artists who reach people with this type of music. In a recent interview with Contemporary Christian Music Magazine, Sheila stated, "It's not that we're a generation of young people who know about God and rejected Him. We've got generations that don't know what it is to be a Christian."

Because of this, Sheila does assemblies to students in Scotland and England in public schools where youth are faced with peer pressure, drugs, and violent punk movement which is far more severe in the United Kingdom than in America.

Another group, not usually recognized as a Christian rock band, is Kansas. Kansas' new album, "Vinyl Confessions," hit both secular and Christian charts earlier this year.

Kansas is not a "religious act" though half the members are Christians. Keyboard player Kerry Livgren explained the lyrics on the new album. "There's an underlying theme that I've written into a lot of the songs, and that is that Jesus Christ is not something you can relate to in terms of like riding a fence. You're either for Him or you're against Him."

Kansas still records under the secular level of Kirshner Records. Livgren feels that the people he would like to hear his music aren't the ones who will walk into a Christian bookstore and buy it.

A newcomer to the Christian music scene is Prodigal, a band reminiscent of Ambrosia and the Alan Parsons Project.

Swedish heavy metal band, Jerusalem, is pure rock. Ulf Christiansson of the band stated, "Rock is my music. I've always been into very heavy, hard rock. But to have a rock concert and not give people a chance to meet Jesus would be meaningless."

Sororities Participate In Fund Raisers

By BRENDA BILLINGS

The three social sororities--Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Gamma Delta, and Sigma Kappa--actively participate in fundraisers each semester to make money for various charities and their own chapter.

Club Rebuilding

Southwestern's English Club is revamping its resources and rebuilding the currently dwindling membership and involvement in the club. President LaDonna Porter stressed that she would like to see more participation. "We have many things to do that are fun, now we need the people to join us," she said.

The next meeting of the English Club will be held Monday, March 7, at 5:15 p.m. in S203. The day and time of the meeting has been changed so that those students who commute can attend the meeting.

All English majors, minors, and those elementary education majors with specialization in English are encouraged to attend the meeting.

"Working together to reach our goal," is one rewarding factor involved with money-making projects, according to Becky Barnes, Gamma Phi. Gamma Phi Beta sponsors activities such as Girl of the Year Pageant, slave sales, and a pie throw to raise money. Proceeds from these functions go towards the chapter and its philanthropy, which is a camp for underprivileged girls located in Vancouver.

The Sigma Kappa girls have had bake sales and an egg drive to raise money for their sorority. An egg drive is the process of obtaining an egg from one house, then selling the egg back to the house next door for a donation. According to the Sig Kaps, an egg drive is a unique and fun way to raise money. Sigma Kappa donates funds from these activities to their philanthropies which are the Maine Seacoast Mission and the American Farm School in Greece. Sig Kap Sandy Sheirman believes fundraisers are beneficial because the sorority is "working together so that they can donate to a cause they all feel is worthwhile."

Alpha Gamma Delta participated in the "Erase Diabetes Campaign." The girls sponsored a pie throw and bake sale, sold erasers, and placed donation canisters in stores to raise money to donate to the campaign. Sara Kurtz approves of fundraisers because "It's a group effort and it brings everyone closer."

The entire Panhellenic Association also participates in fundraisers. Panhellenic sold Cokes at the Arts Festival and sponsors the Muscular Dystrophy Dance-a-Thon. Junior Panhellenic sold raffle tickets for a turkey and $50 worth of gas, along with selling helium balloons at the football games. The Panhellenic Association donated money to the Chamber of Commerce for the Christmas tree lights.

Fraternities Help Men

By GEORGIA GARNER

The definition of a fraternity is a group of men joined together by common interests and for fellowship. The biggest fraternities at Southwestern are Tau Kappa Epsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha and Phi Delta Theta.

The officers for the TKE's are Brad Sarchet, president; Mark Reynolds, vice-president; Kevin Birkley, secretary; Greg Stong, treasurer; Darren Stormond, historian; Steve Rosenzweig, chaplain; Steve Galandle, sergeant at arms; and Kevin Knight, pledge raiser.

The TKE's two biggest parties are the Christmas party and the Red Carnation Ball. For a fund-raiser, they have a keg roll marathon. The Tau Kappa Epsilon policy is brotherhood and education. Many famous people are TKE's. Ronald Reagan, Merv Griffin, Danny Thomas and Lawrence Welk are all members. Pledges for the TKE's are required to carry a pledge book that under no circumstances can any sorority member read. The TKE's also took 3rd place in the blood drive this year.

The officers for Phi Delta Theta are: Pete Franks, president; Robert Dennis, vice-president; Larry Bergus, treasurer; Tommy Holbrook, secretary; and Joe Bob Gresham, pledge trainer. For the fall semester, the PKE's had 12 pledges. The pledges aren't required to do anything other than to wear a pledge pin and

There is no certain grade point average required but for the last two years the PKE's have won the grade scholarship award and have every intention of winning it again this year. For their fund-raisers, the PKE's have car washes and auctioned a television.

Last but certainly not least are the Phi Delta's. They also had 12 pledges for the fall semester. Their offices are: Bart Cox, president; Jeff Grage, vice-president; Tom Mossamon, secretary; and Jim Arnold, rush chairman.

There are a few requirements to the members such as house dues, grades (over a 2.0) and attendance at certain meetings. Pledges are required to memorize their pledge manual, attend meetings and participate in fund raisers. The Phi Delta's have several parties such as their rush party, a Christmas party, Hawaiian party and a few toga parties. Their fund raisers include car washes, a chili supper, painting things for Southwestern and participating in the blood drive. David Hudson, Woodward junior, said the reason he joined the Phi Delta's was, "to be part of the organization. I was impressed with the members and pledges and it really helped me out by having a place to go and keep my grades up."

The Southwestern baseball team lost two games against Oral Roberts University Saturday.
